

Mission: Our Company is dedicated to promoting the New Youth American Student Athletes, and indoctrinates them with life skills that will take them beyond the game and turn them into highly productive educated athletes. The New Youth American Student Athlete will learn his passion for the game, is the same passion needed to succeed in life.

Vision: We are proud to be involved with America's hometown heroes – the student athletes working hard to improve their skills, place team above self, and serve as inspirations to their local communities Statchecka.com brings top athletes from across the county face to face with high school coaches, college coaches, other youth players, and friends. We provide a one stop spot that glorify all student athletes and give them the proper notoriety, and resources for sports and education.

About us: In 2006, After going to college for psychology Joseph “Coach Joe” Simpson started coaching youth football. Being a parent of an athlete, he enjoyed teaching his son and teammates the fundamentals of football encouraging them on values of teamwork, dedication, discipline, respect, and having a passion for the game. While training athletes, he would film each session, go home and break down film to see what needed to be work on. However, during his research, he was able to transform these athletes into the best players in there league. Joseph study athletes as early as 5 to 13 years old, but his main concern became getting his 13 year old athletes into high academic high schools. The problem was none of them was able to pass the entry exam in order to get into a high school of that caliber. So each athlete had to go to a schools that put them in a situation were succeeded wasn’t priority and therefore getting a good look by colleges would be hard to come by. One thing Joseph did notice was that, every athlete wanted to see how good they looked on film and each one did better in school when he told them he would make them a highlight reel. When David Fulcher Jr. the son of David Fulcher Sr. who played for the Cincinnati Bengals in the late 80’s ask Coach if he could have a highlight of him doing drills so he could show his father, and Coach Joe’s son wanted to show his grandmother his highlight reel and both family members lived in other states, that’s when Statchecka.com was born.

Since March of 2008, Statchecka.com has created a unique on-line community. Our community includes student athletes, leagues, chapters, coaches, parents, and high schools. Companies have the opportunity to conduct business through memberships, media services, tutoring services, advertising services, resource services, and events that will capture new markets the old fashion way, through relationship. Through relationships, Statchecka.com has connections with nearly 1,000 coaches, 4 youth football leagues, and a host of high schools throughout the Los Angeles County.

Statchecka.com is a professional-grade communications tool designed to help promote your new youth American student athletes. Statchecka.com is a level playing field where every athlete in the nation shares game clips, profiles, updates, and detailed player stats. Using Statchecka.com is fun, easy, and useful. We invite you to join us and the thousands of other youth American who use Statchecka.com as a part of their community tradition.

–Jr. Redmond. (2002 Super Bowl Champion with the New England Patriots)

“Statchecka.com is the youth sports dictionary, every athlete should use its services”

To join the Statcheka.com community you will be joining The New American Youth Athlete Movement. A movement base in truth, fair play and overall sportsman like American Values.